Old Timers.

When old men meet they ask for news of friends they used to know. "Say, what's become of Hiram Hughes?" "The anthrax laid him low." "Well, what's become of William Bill, and what's become of Fred?" "They both are sleeping on the hill, and each is doubly dead." "Why, truly, i.iend, if these things be, we're pretty much alone; but where is filas J. McGee?" "He sleeps beneath the stone." "I used to know a lovely maid, whose name Public Utilities Commission Acwas Julia Jones." "She's resting place of bones." No wonder that the old are bent beneath their weight of gloom; they cannot gossip worth a cent and not bring in the tomb. Mirth to their discourse they would lend and cheerfully behave, but when they ask about a friend they hear about the grave. "Oh, what's become of Jim and Joe and Nell and Bess and Jane?" 'They died the death long years ago, and dead they still WALT MASON.

Attorneys for Potomac Electric Power Co. Assail Methods Employed. Hearing May Last Months.

Andrew Sangster, chief accountant of the valuation bureau of the public utilities commission, again was subfected to rigid cross-examination today by attorneys for the Potomac Electric ower Company regarding the tentative valuation placed by the commis sion on the company's property. The cross-examination of this witness alone may consume the entire week and longer, it was stated.

As was the case last week, eliminations from capital account made by Mr. Sangster in his report again were made the principal target for attack by the company's lawyers. Their consought to make elimination from can-

ry and hearsay, thereby donne company an injustice.

With his accounting methods being vigorously assalled and with additional witnesses to be heard and the other elements that go to make up value to be investigated, the hearing, it is prest dicted, may drag into weeks and months.

In other words, they claim that Mr. Sangster, in the accounting work, should have gone no farther than present a historical report of the company's property, as shown by its books, but instead of this he has undertaken to exclude certain items so as to make the report show only the cost of existing property.

Unavailing efforts on the part of the company's lawyers to obtain from Mr.
Sangster detailed information as to Sangster detailed information as to why certain deductions from capital were made in his report were followed by an attempt to have his testimony excluded, but the motion was overruled. An exception was noted, and this point, it is believed, will be made one of the reasons for an appeal to the courts, should the company be dissatisfied with the valuation eventually to he appropriate the second of the courts. o be approved by the utilities board.

But Small Part of Inquiry.

While the Sangster testimony has deeloped an issue that may figure prominently in subsequent litigation, this phase of the investigation constitutes but a small part of the general inquiry. The question of cost of reproduction of the company's property is slated to come up next, which will bring the work of the en-gineer division of the valuation bureau into the limelight. MUSICIANS TO REHEARSE.

First Meeting of Season of District Symphony Orchestra.

The first rehearsal of the season of the District Symphony Orchestra will e held in the Thomson School, 12th and L streets northwest, at 7:45 o'clock tomorrow night. All members, as well as those desirous of affiliating with the organization, are invited to be present Organized by Walter C. Allen, head of the electrical department, as a municipal institution, the orchestra has been expanded until its membership is now open to all musicians, whether in a mule is being made by the police. Ownpublic or private life. Sidney Roche, assistant auditor, is secretary-treasurer of the organization, Dr. Hamlin E. Coggswell, director of music of the District public schools, director, and Dr. Lewis H. Chernoff assistant di-

It is not the purpose of the orchestra to be a competitor of musical organizations which are paid for performances.
Dr. Coggswell states that the earlier rehearsals will take up music of lighter character, to be followed later in the season with heavier rumbers, both classical and modern.

"The road back to the falls is exceedingly attractive and by making a short side trip the remains of what is known as the Indian village may be found hidden away in the woods. A few of our number made this pilgrimage and noted some of the grotesque tombstones, now almost hidden by the growth of a century and more.

A perfect fall day was at the disposal of the walkers, and it is predicted that the welcome change from the warm summer will soon bring the number participating to the old standard of two or three hundred. With prospects of good weather, the little vessel will use the outside passage, going through the capes and into the Atlantic ocean and proceeding slowly up the coast. However, if the weather man believes that a storm is brewing the Sylvia will proceed up the bay and participating to the old standard of two or three hundred.

Thursday night and went to an anchorage near ships of the Atlantic fleet there. A boat was lowered and all men not on watch were permitted ashore until midnight.

Early Friday morning signals were exchanged with the battleship Okla-homa, the senior ship present. The commander of the Oklahoma gave per-mission for the Sylvia to proceed to Norfolk to coal and provision. When oee naval ship anchors near another it has to get permission of the com-mander of the senior vessel before it can again get under way.

Ship Provisioned and Coaled.

Upon arrival at the Norfolk yard provisions for the next week were taken for a river point to load cord wood to return; power sloop Virginia, light, for the eastern shore of Chesapeake bay after potatoes for the market here; schooner Oscar, light, from Alexandria for Nomini creek after pulp wood for Alexandria; steamer Northland, for Old Point and Norfolk; steamer Gratitude, for river landings as far as Colonial Beach and Mattox creek. on, and the work of putting aboard twenty-five tons of coal started. This is an "all hands job," as they say in the navy, which, interpreted, means that every one aboard ship helps to coal. It is a dirty job, and the nice white coat of paint which the Sylvia carried when ened before the coaling had been completed.

But after coaling there is another big job—cleaning up. Buckets, holystones, mops, hose lines are provided in plenty. All hands start scrubbing ship—some on deck and others over the side. It took quite a little while to get the black coating off. But now she looks as trim as ever.

The health of the men has been excellent, except, of course, for a bit of seasickness. That isn't serious, but it gives good sailors a chance to roast less fortunate comrades.

If there should be a little "swell" on the way to Philadelphia, the rocking of the vessel probably will save Cook O. K. Stanton some work. He will not have as many to provide for.

Lieut. Albert P. Tibbets, surgeon, has had little to do, except bandage up a few injured fingers.

CITIZENS OF NORTHEAST SUGGEST IMPROVEMENTS

Submit Nine Propositions for Com missioners to Consider for Annual Estimates.

Nine improvements for northeast Washington are suggested to the Commissioners for consideration in connection with the framing of the annual estimates by the executtive committee of the Northeast Washington Citizens' Association.

The list includes the following: Appropriation of not less than $300,000 for new Eastern High School building; appropriation for a site and toward construction of a building to accommodate pupils of the sixth division; purchase of Patterson tract for public park; extension and improvement of New York tension and improvement of New York avenue, from 1st street to intersection of Bladenshurg road; erection of fire truck house; widening of Benning road to a width of 110 feet from 15th street northeast to Oklahoma avenue; grading and improving of West Virginia avenue from Florida avenue to New York avenue extended; increased appropriations for Anacostia fiats reclamation work, and paving only of such streets under the existing law as may be requested in writing by petition of two-thirds of the property-holders on any street to be paved.

NEW LOOP IN USE TODAY.

Traversed Now Exclusively by Florida Avenue Line.

The new street car loop around the G. A. R. statue at 7th street and Louisiana avenue was placed in service today. It will be used exclusively, for the present, at least, by Florida avenue line cars, which will make this point their southern terminus. Rock Creek Bridge and Chevy Chase cars will continue to operate through on 7th street to the wharves.

The loop was built by the Capital Traction Company upon the approval of the public utilities commission, and will make possible, it is stated, a more frequent headway on 7th street north of Pennsylvania avenue when the traf-fic demands it.
